ROOMS

A room, a cubicle, a home for a year. Many students chose to do a little remodeling of the basic residence hall room, while others made do with what was already there. Creativity was seen through A-frame bunks, loft beds, and shelves which incorporated more space.

Accessories such as televisions, plants, shades, furniture, fish tanks, bars, and other memorabilia were the finishing touches.

PEOPLE

You see them everywhere, whether you are on north campus, south campus, in the union, at the library, or in passing.

... People, each and everyone that makes up this campus. Interactions, with other students, before and after classes, or at the surrounding businesses, keep the channels open.

Students have their own way of getting about. Although most walk, some ride bikes, other use their wheel chairs, and still others run. It is the getting out and moving about which opens up the field for interactions.

CLASSES

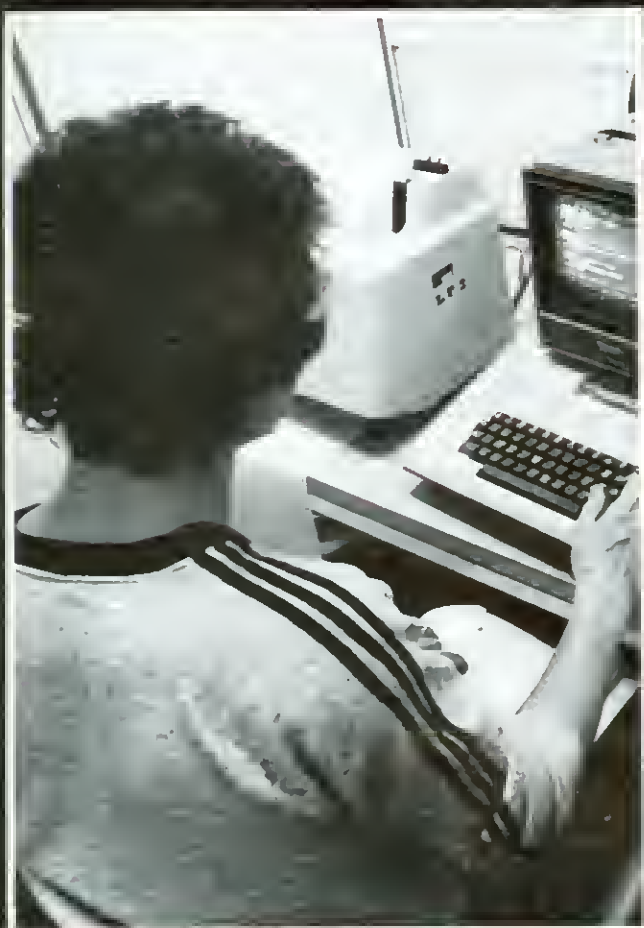

There were Tuesday-Thursday eight o'clocks and Monday-Wednesday-Friday two o'clocks, and even a few late afternoon and night ones.

Classes, the broad spectrum, ranging from textiles in Home Economics, microbiology in the Science Wing, speech in Harvey Hall, to economics in the Modulux.

As we progressed further into our majors, we learned valuable information in our classes. In some, such as the niches and corner III, we even had first-hand experience.

In others, such as print making, flat pattern, and drawing, we developed our creative talents.

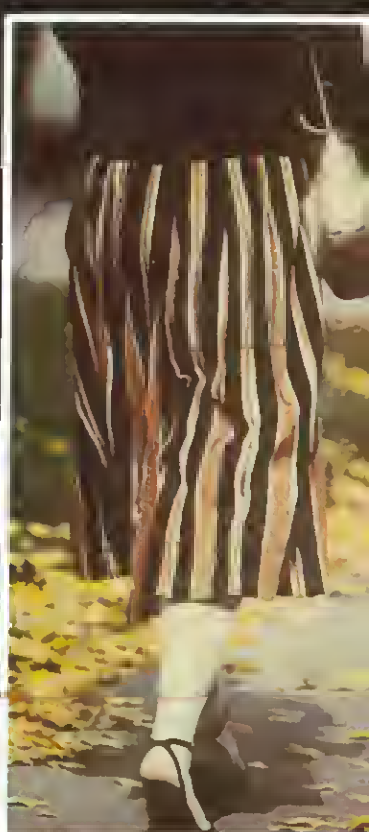

FADS AND FASHIONS

Many new and different styles appeared on the Stout campus. The fashion crazes of stadium coats, cou-lottes, leotards and legwarmers for jazzercise, football shoes, and bright colors such as red and green dominated the scene.

E.T., Pacman, and Ms. Pacman also touched our lives through greeting cards, music and video games. Even the tragic incidents of the Extra-Strength Tylenol deaths affected us.

STUDENT LIFE

Walking to class, studying in the last of the summer's sun, or picnicking in the mall, Stout was our home for the year.

Our weeks, which turned into months, and then a semester, were filled with many college-oriented activities. Such activities as meeting a friend for salad bar, working on a group project in the Fireside Lounge, or seeing one of the weekly featured films in Applied Arts, made Stout more than a classroom-lecture-note taking institution.

BARS

Each one has its own atmosphere and setting in Menomonie, not to mention its share of college business. The Buck, Log Jam, and JR Saloon went a step further to offer students and other residents a menu.

Other bars with equal shares of business included the Spot, Marion, Meet Market, the Den, Flame Lounge, and the Tap.

The bars offered an outlet away from the residence hall, apartment, or home life.

STUDENT CENTER

Conveniently set, the Memorial Student Center, referred to by the Stout community as the union, offered many services.

Two dining areas, the snack bar and the Pawn, offered a change of pace from the Commons or Tainter food services. The President's room, a little more elegant, but affordable, was also featured.

Conference rooms such as the Epoch room, Bluedevil room, and Red Cedar room were places for many meetings. The Ballroom featured many events, including a career conference, a small business workshop, dinner-theater, and a jazz-erthon.

Other services included the Printery, the bookstore, recreation center, and t.v. room in the basement.

Our homes. Eight separate ones, yet all related. The same room for every two, yet all uniquely different.

Full of life, books, plants, stereos, televisions, and most of all, individuality.

Special friendships, floor parties, hall parties, dinner dances, committee meetings, and countless floor meetings all going on throughout the year and enriching our lives.

We live, grow, and establish ourselves as residents.

One room amidst countless others in rows were developed into new homes.

From time to time we all came together as one big family or as a floor family.

The idiosyncracies we all have, surfaced, and we shared them among many new and old faces ...

Student life takes into account the everyday and everynight activities and involvements of Stout students. Classes filled the majority of our days and some on into the evening. Through these classes we met new faces and the acquaintances blossomed into friendships.

Our lives were centered on the library, the union, with friends, at houses, at residence halls, and at the many local bars. These places and people were all a part of our individual ...

ACTIVITIES

"Space-The Final Frontier" was the theme for the 1982 Homecoming, October 18-24. Bill Wagner and Joan Hunter, from Applied Math club, reigned as king and queen over the festivities.

The week began with the royalty candidate couples competing against each other at the athletic field.

Male candidates tried out their hand at cheerleading, while female candidates embarked on an obstacle course.

Other activities during the week included skit night and the coronation dance. Music entertainment at the snack bar included Pat McCurdy, Snopek, and Greystar. The Bluedevil football team climaxed the week's festivities by defeating UW-Stevens Point.

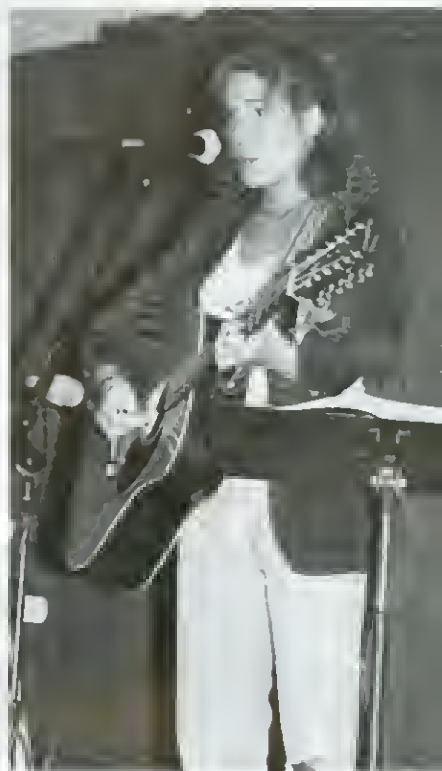

PAWN ENTERTAINMENT

A quaint little dining and entertainment center with coffeehouse atmosphere exists on the bottom level of the student center: the Pawn. The pawn features many of the same menu selections as the snack bar, such as homemade soups, sandwiches, salads, and pastries. Sandwiches and bagels can be warmed in the self-service microwave.

Entertainment by many performers, and even local talent from the school and community take on the stage Thursday, Friday, and Saturday evenings.

SNACK BAR ENTERTAINMENT

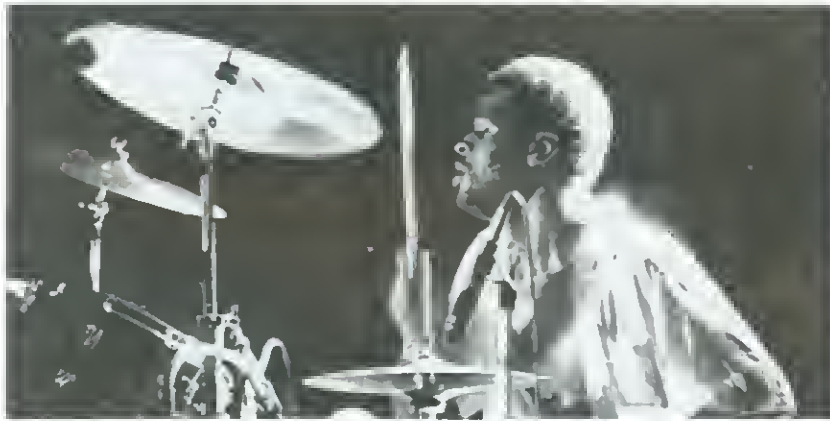

The Mystery Band

Rock to reggae. Country to comedy. The entertainment in the snack bar was indeed diverse.

Shangoya provided the atmosphere for Contemporary Music Productions' annual beach party. Country rockers felt right at home with the sounds of the Ozark Mt. Daredevils. Comedian Alan Freed entertained with his crazy antics and strange sense of humor.

The U.P.B. Commissions also brought such entertainment as Pat McCurdy and the Men About Town, the Flaming Oh's, Hot Jazz, the Mystery Band, and Ruby Star to the Stout Stage.

STUDENT EMPLOYMENT

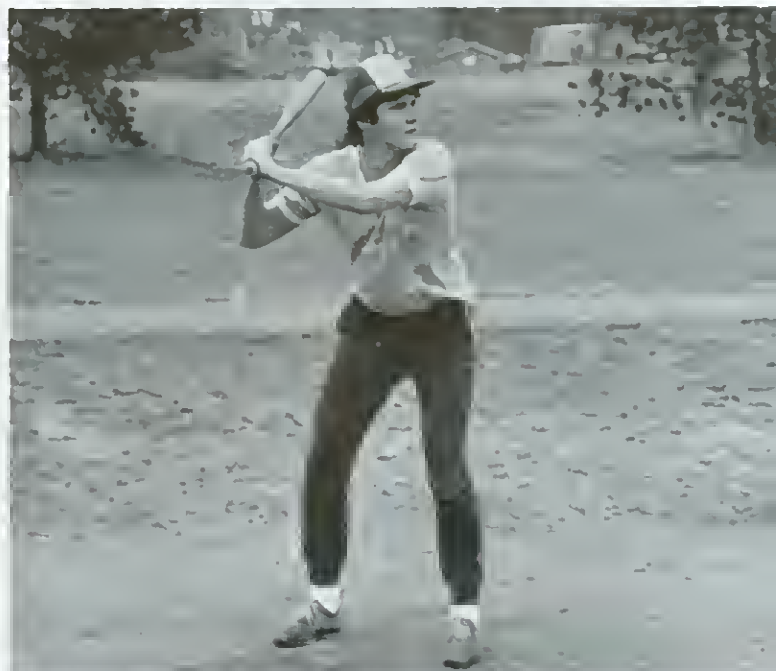

Time spent equalled money in the pocket for these Stout students who earned while they learned. Students found employment ranging from the many operations of the new Library Learning Center helping other students at the Student Center information desk. Jobs were offered in the areas of activities programming to food service.

Learning without pay was also a common experience on the campus. Students enrolled in practical major classes received on-the-job training at the Niches, Corner III, and the day care center.

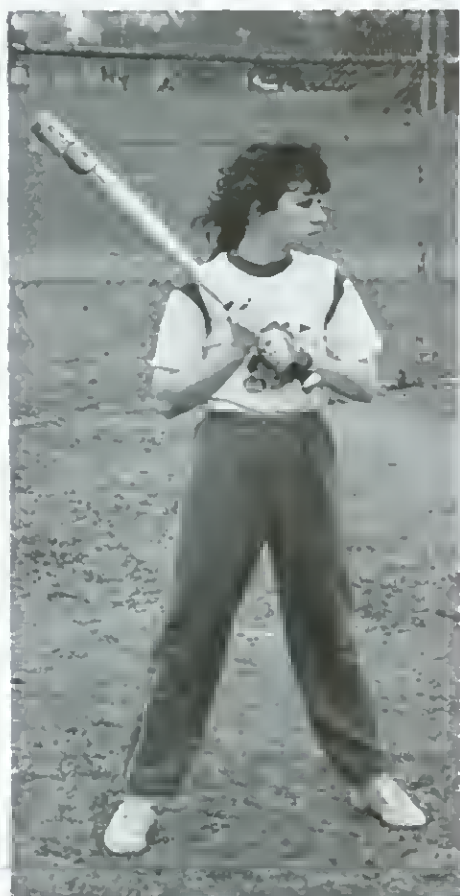

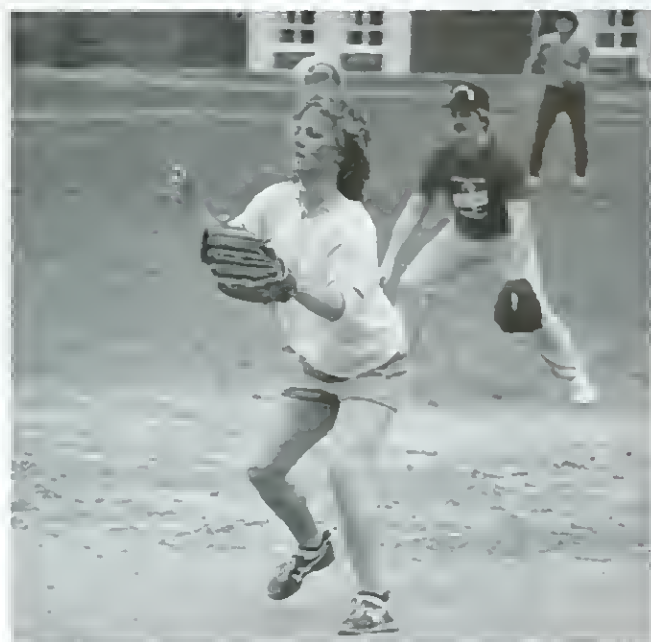

INTRAMURALS

The intramural program at UW-Stout is one that allows people who are non-varsity to participate in various sports according to their skill level. This program helps to keep Stout students involved in exercise and recreation throughout the school year.

WINTER CARNIVAL

Sail the South Seas!

The Special Events Commission planned all sorts of tropical fun for this year's Winter Carnival Week.

To start off the festivities, "Yadrutas Nuf" (Saturday spelled backwards) brought an evening of coffeehouse music by Dan Bern, followed by the four-part harmonies of a new hot band called Hot Jazz. Alex Cole, comedian extraordinaire, humored his audience with monologues on real life and the evening was concluded by a performance by the Mystery Band, a contemporary and energetic group.

All those competing for the crowns of Winter Carnival King and Queen competed in a variety of Winter Fun activities which were held in Nelson Field. Competition included snowshoe racing, sculpturing, snowball throwing and innertube pulling.

King and Queen candidates vied for the title through the annual skit night where they, along with their sponsoring organizations, put on short and comical performances relating to the South Seas theme.

An Evening In the South Seas took place in the Union Square. Singer/songwriter Dana Clark appeared in the Pawn to perform up-tempo music consisting of the blues, ragtime and a little bit of boogie. King and Queen candidates and a capacity crowd swayed to the reggae/calypso music of Shangoya. Leis and tropical attire were a prerequisite for this evening.

UNIVERSITY SPEAKERS

The University Speakers Series Commission was proud to join with SUDS (Students Understanding Drinking Sensibly) and the Office of Student Activities to open the third season of the speakers series with a presentation by Jean Kilbourne.

Dr. Kilbourne, who is the Assistant Director of the New England Screen Education Association, addressed a campus and community audience at 8:00 p.m., Tuesday, September 14, in the Harvey Hall Auditorium. Dr. Kilbourne is a nationally recognized authority on the subliminal impacts and uses of commercial advertisements. Her talk and slide presentation was titled, "Under the Influence: The Pushing of Alcohol via Advertising."

Dr. Kilbourne's appearance at Stout was a prelude to "Alcohol Awareness Week" and the focus of the presentation was the effect of alcohol abuse on woman, minorities, and young people, and its relationship to self-image and self-esteem.

On Monday evening, October 4, at 8:00 p.m. in the Johnson Fieldhouse, Harvey Wasserman and Dr. Arnold Kramish debated what many people regarded as mankind's ultimate question: Survivability: With the Arms Race?

Both debaters are among the nation's leading authorities on nuclear topics and both have written extensively about the effects of atomic weapons.

Harvey Wasserman has been an activist in the civil rights, anti-war, anti-nuclear and pro-ecology movements since 1973 and today is recognized as the best-known investigative reporter on the detrimental effects that radiation has on modern civilization. His latest book, Killing Our Own: The Disaster of America's Experience with Atomic Radiation, has been described as "the best account of the crime of the century."

Dr. Arnold Kramish has been involved with the issue of atomic energy and nuclear armaments since World War II and is today the Director of the Smithsonian Institute for International Studies Think Tank. He directed the first U.S. study of global fallout and has served with the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission. He has also been a consultant for the U.S. Department of Energy, Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory, the Stanford Research Institute and Georgetown University's Center for Strategic and International Studies.

On Wednesday, December 8, at 8:00 p.m. in the Harvey Hall Auditorium, Dr. Gerard K. O'Neill, a nationally-reowned professor of physics from Princeton University, delivered an address and made a slide presentation titled "2081: Our Next Century on Earth and in Space."

Dr. O'Neill, who is also the president of the Space Studies Institute is best known for developing the concept of space colonies as a realistic plan within the limits of existing technology. O'Neill's blueprint for human colonies in space is set forth in his book, The High Frontier, which won the Phi Beta Kappa award as the best science book of 1977.

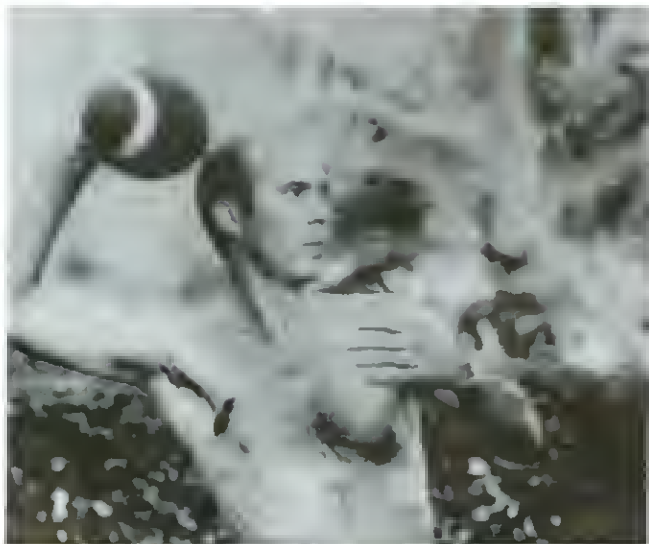

Dr. O'Neill's most recent work in space research was widely circulated in 1981 in his third book, 2081: A Hopeful View of the Human Future. In this study he projects the major developments of the next century as they will affect the lives of people of all nations. Using the evidence of human history and his predictions of technical change based on scientific reality, Dr. O'Neill prophesies a world not free of risk, but nevertheless exciting and rich in options for a better tomorrow.

On Tuesday, January 18, at 7:30 p.m. in the Harvey Hall Auditorium, former Marine Liet. Robert Muller delivered an address titled "Vietnam War Stories" and presented a film called "Heroes."

Robert Muller, 37, is currently the executive director of the Vietnam Veterans of America. Mr. Muller was a 23-year-old Marine Corps Lieutenant in Vietnam, leading an assault against a Viet Cong stronghold, when a bullet struck him in the chest and severed his spine. The wounds left him permanently paralyzed from the chest down, confined to a wheel chair for the rest of his life. Since then Mr. Muller has become a charismatic and eloquent speaker, well-known to many Americans as a result of his appearance on numerous television talk shows.

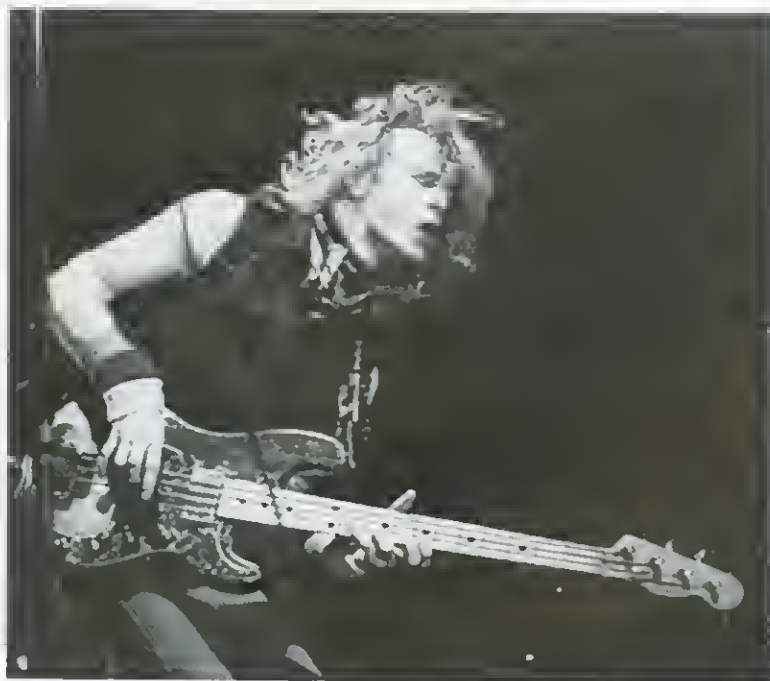

"Vietnam War Stories" began with a look at our involvement in the Vietnam War and then focused on the world today. During the course of the evening, Mr. Muller took us down into the trenches where the war was really fought: Not only did we share the experiences of a Vietnam Vet, but we also confronted with him the moral and political questions the war has forced us to ask.

Hunter S. Thompson, the "King of Gonzo Journalism," spoke at 8:00 p.m. in the Johnson Fieldhouse. Thompson first achieved recognition for his book, Fear and Loathing: In Las Vegas, which has become a counter-culture classic. His most unusual approach to writing can also be appreciated in Fear and Loathing: On the Campaign Trail, '72 and in his most recent publication, The Great Shark Hunt. Thompson is also a writer exceptionale for such magazines as The Rolling Stone, Playboy, and The National Observer.

Most recently, Thompson's unconventional lifestyle was the subject of the movie, Where the Buffalo Roam. He is also the model for the character "Uncle Duke," appearing in the Gary Trudeau's Doonesbury comic strip.

SHOOTING STAR & TALAS

A near capacity audience took to their feet in the Johnson Fieldhouse as Shooting Star took the stage. Most concert-goers remained on their feet throughout Contemporary Music Productions' major concert for 1983.

Shooting Star proved to be a treat for heavy rock n' rollers of Stout, as they combined piercing guitar solos, strong vocals and thundering drums into their performance. Some of the band's biggest hits included "Hollywood," "Hang on for your Life Tonight," and "Last Chance."

Opening for Shooting Star was a high-voltage, heavy-metal rock band, Talas. From Buffalo, New York, the three-piece band played a brief introductory concert, but failed to warm-up the crowd that awaited Shooting Star ...

PLAYS

An eerie, war-damaged cathedral was the setting for Stout's first play of the school year, "A Sleep of Prisoners." Four Allied soldiers being held prisoners by the Nazis were given a sense of hope as they all had dreams relating to Old Testament happenings. This play, directed by Gerry Myers, constantly took the audience from dreams to realities of war.

A six-member cast took to the stage to present Stout's first opperetta, "Jacques Brel is Alive and Well and Living in Paris." Under the direction of Natalie Bothwell and musical coordinator Dennis Siebenaler, these singers and dancers performed a show consisting of 23 songs written by Jacques Brel, a French artist. The songs covered every emotional experience; whether saddened, uplifted, disturbed or comforted, members of the audience were definitely touched by the music.

The newly-formed University Theatre Club chose Neil Simon's "Plaza Suite" as the organization's first student directed play. Three separate acts took place in 719 Plaza Suite. The show ranged from a failing marriage to the problems of two high school flames getting together to a bride who locked herself in the bathroom on her wedding day.

Spring has always been a time for love, so what better time to present "Romantic Comedy?" This play directed by Natalie Bothwell, is all about special friendships. Two playwrights fall in love, but their timing is definitely out of sync. Love triangles form as the two finally find their way back to each other years later. Witty lines and emotional expression were combined to make this play just what the title says it is, a romantic comedy.

PARENTS WEEKEND

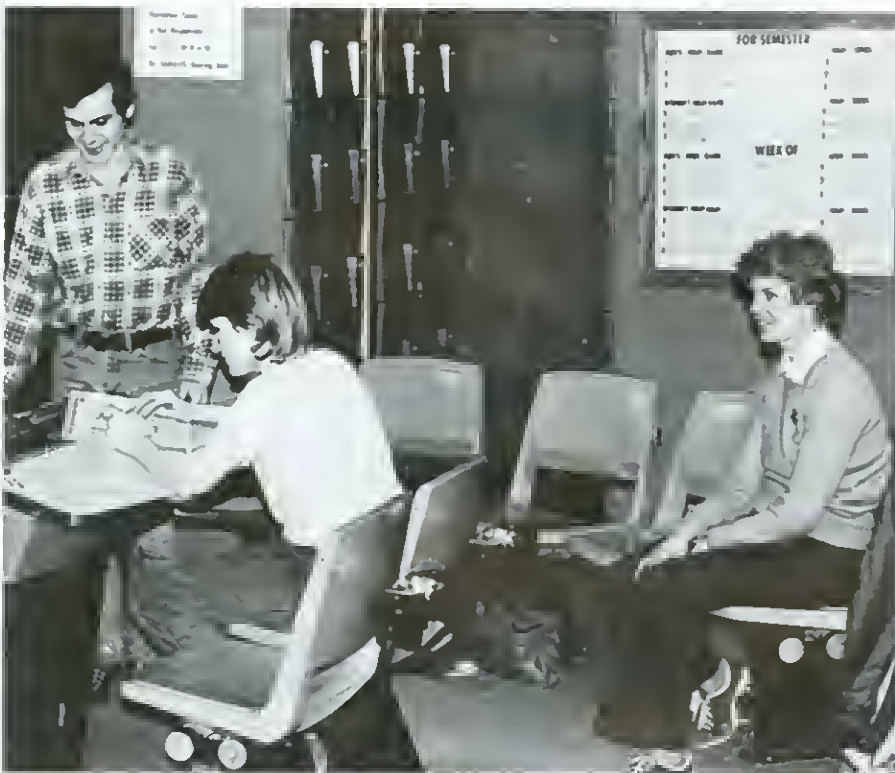

"Come Up and See Us Sometime" was the theme for this year's Parents Weekend, that time when students and their parents get together to share in the busy, three-day' schedule put together by the Parents Weekend committee. Several activities highlighted the weekend.

Friday evening, the Lou Johnson Orchestra entertained parents and students with jazz-oriented danceable music. Saturday provided several options. Parents were invited to view the Park Front Festival Art Display "Learning through Involvement" in the Library, and all-student-design fashion show sponsored by Retail Directions, open house of all classroom buildings, and visiting the various activity booths set up in the student center.

Fitting right in with the theme, a "People Rodeo" was held outside. Prizes were awarded to participants who did the best in such events as "kid roping" and gunny sack racing. The concert band, Symphonic and Chamber Singers entertained parents and students in the fieldhouse in the afternoon as well.

John Laytrec displayed feats of hypnosis and mentalism Saturday night, hypnotizing several members of his audience to prove his powers. The traditional Casino Night was held, and parents and Students "gambled" away their play money at such games as Black Jack, Lucky 7 and Wheel of Fortune.

Top wrap up the weekend, an all-day Antique Auto Show and Swap Meet sponsored by the Stout Antique Auto Club was held at the Dunn County Fairgrounds.

SPRING FAIR

Once again, the May Day Music Festival began a week of Spring Fair activities to Stout. From the Wilson Park Bانشell came the music of balladeer Michael Johnson. His performance was laced with humor and sincerity. Poor Hoaward (Howard Stith), a six-and 12-string guitar master and comedian hosted the festival. Other performers featured were Stout student Vicki Donahue, Sharon and Harry Muir, Peter Spring and Banjolemma. The Pawn Coffeehouse Commission sponsored the day of outdoor entertainment and fun.

The comical and talented Martin & Loon Jugglers entertained students passing through the mall area, and students displayed their artistic talents through the abstract sidewalk chalk drawings.

Scott Jones returned to the Stout campus and put forth his usual evening of excellence, a combination of comedy and musical skill.

Without a sound, Micah & Laura, a mime duo, roamed the campus mimicking passers-by.

And to add a touch of class to the week of activities, the Music Department and Activities Office brought saxophone virtuoso Larry Gwozdz to the Harvey Hall Stage.

We grow, aside from classes, in our interests.

These interests keep us perpetually involved in many happenings at school. Whether we are president, vice president, or just a member, we are part of the whole.

We learn much about ourselves, Stout, and our potentials from being involved in ...

In each of us exists special qualities. Some thrive on competition, the thrill of victory as a team, or the grueling individual event which reflects the team.

As players, we spend endless hours practicing to perfect our parts in the brief performance.

Practice after practice, drill after drill, attempt after attempt, conditioning, being physically and mentally ready ...

What seemed like a long journey to the outside world turned out to be the time of our lives.

Over the past years we realized that there are potential careers out there for us.

We became acquainted with the campus, the different course offerings, and the majors, before narrowing our choices.

Now we close the door (at least temporarily) on our formal education and open the long awaited door to our career ...

1983 TOWER YEARBOOK STAFF

EDITORS NOTE:

We have come a long way since August of 1982. Some have brushed up their typing skills and design techniques and have mastered 3R's, 3C's, copy keys and croppers. While others have perfected the art of photography, developing and printing skills.

No one said that creating a yearbook was an easy task. Only those who have experienced it can understand all of the details that have gone into producing each page of the Tower.

I would like to extend a warm thank you to the dedicated 1983 Tower Staff. Our book is a product to be proud of!

Elizabeth M. Nord
Editor-in-Chief

WELCOME: Howard Foreman the new Tower Yearbook Advisor.

SPECIAL THANKS TO:

David Goheen of Goheen Studio's for photographing the 1983 seniors.

Marty Springer for photographing the faculty.

Bill Siedlecki for guiding us when help was needed.

Diane Hjelter for the encouragement and support in all of our business affairs.

Jane Murphy for sharing her creative writing skills.

Ron Kresel for all of his hard work and faith in the 1983 Tower Staff. We could not have done it without you!
